Y. M. C. A-STAR-BULLETIN BOYS' ELECTION SUCCESS

Hundreds of Ballots Being Cast for Heads of Various Tickets

"Vote for Wad-row Wilson!"
"Don't youse do it!"
"Hey, mister, give to me one o' dem ballots; I like for make vote!"
"Tedore Roosevelt is me choice!"
The big boys' election under direction of the Star-Bulletin and the Young Men's Christian Association began this morning at eleven o'clock and will continue up until seven o'clock this evening when the polls will be closed and the votes counted to see which of the three candidates for president of the United States is the choice of the youthful population of Honolulu.

Yesterday and today Messrs. Cross and Loomis, of the Y. M. C. A., with the co-operation of the Star-Bulletin have been making the rounds of the schools of Honolulu and arousing interest among the boys. This morning sample ballots were distributed at the Royal Central Grammar, Iolani, and Mills schools and by a quarter to twelve the youthful voters had commenced to gather at the Boys' department of the association.

This mock election is on the plan of a real live presidential election. The ballots have been printed with the names of the three candidates for the presidency, the names of the two local candidates for congress, and those for mayor of Honolulu, while the main room in the boys' department has been fitted up with voting booths. There will be judges and all the necessary officials that are generally seen around the polls.

The event has caused a great amount of enthusiasm among the boys, and this morning at Central Grammar School, after some lively discussions as to whether Roosevelt or Wilson would be elected. Strange to say, nobody had anything to say about Taft. Evidently they thought that he was able to take care of himself.

In speaking of the election this morning, general secretary Super said: "The Y. M. C. A. does not tell a man for which party he shall vote, but it does ask him to exercise his right of suffrage. We believe that Christian men should be interested in politics; that they should register, attend meetings, study the candidates, and vote. If you begin with the boy, and get him interested in politics, by the time he has become a man he will know something about the game and will take an active part in matters of government. That is the reason we are holding this election for boys."

Messrs. Loomis and Cross have visited a number of schools and advertised the election among the boys, and the result is that hundreds are interested in election who would have otherwise have given it no thought. This initial interest is liable to stick and when 'Billie Jones' is twenty-one he will value his vote and cast it intelligently; a good deal more intelligently than a whole lot of grown-up 'Billie Jones' have done today. At least 'Billie' will think he is casting it intelligently, which is a whole lot better than going to the polls consciously ignorant of what he is doing and its effects. He will not be the kind of man that scratches an honest Hawaiian and votes for an immoral white man.

The election will come to a close at seven o'clock this evening and all boys wishing to cast a vote may do so any time before then. After the counting is over the returns will be shown on the Star-Bulletin's screen on Fort street, which will be about eight o'clock or a little later.

FOOD INSPECTOR MAKES REPORT

A. W. Hansen, United States Food and drug inspector for the territory of Hawaii, has just finished his report for the month of October, which shows a great many violations of the Food and Drugs Act in both food and drugs imported and sold in Honolulu.

The report shows that twenty such violations have been detected and corrected. These violations include the correction of labels that made gross misrepresentation as to the contents of the package, and other cases were the exclusion of medicines containing dangerous and poisonous drugs. Two of these violations were food products that contained violently poisonous coal tar colors.

"The principal object in the Pure Food and Drugs Act is truth," said Mr. Hansen this afternoon. "The label on any package must tell the truth regarding the contents, and the consumer should learn to study the label as well as the contents of any package. Probably the most encouraging feature from the point of view of those desiring the best possible foods and drugs is that the better classes of manufacturers and dealers are the strongest supporters of the national Food and Drugs Act."

This is easily explained by the fact that it is only through a rigid enforcement of the food law that the honest manufacturers and dealers are protected from competition of adulterated and misbranded products.

"The volcano of Kilauea has very materially increased its activity since Saturday," said L. A. Thurston, who has just returned from Hawaii. "The lake has risen considerably and there is much more activity within the crater now than for several weeks."
